Here are the most used visual words in the first day and how you can help your child learn by heart. Reading is a complex skill that requires many small processes joining to make sense of a lot of symbols on the page. And as your child begins to dominate the appropriate books by age in the first year, they will be using many different strategies to read. Much of the reading work is expended by decoding words by segmenting in sounds, then mix them to make words. For example, the way the word "cat" can be separated into sounds C, A and T, and sounded to make the word "cat". However, some words can not be easily sounded and since they often appear in the text, help for children be able to recognize them with just a look. Enter the concept of vision words. Vision words need to be recognized at a glance, and parents can help children learn these important words of various ways. Here is what are all, more ways you can help your first student. The most common words are available in lists compiled by educational experts for more than 70 years. Dr. Edward Dolch has produced your word list for aged children prek through grade 3.
