ot hcaorppa or ruoy Tales The Pareto principle states that 80% of the results from 20% of your work is tended to obtain. Tracy says that by focusing on your frogs she assures that you are always giving priority to the tasks of 20% which are the most important. This is a great reason why it is necessary to define your goals, break them down in tasks, and work on an objective task every day. When you don't, you finish spending all your time for 80% of the activities, small and low tasks that cannot approach you to achieve your goals. An important part of ensuring that you are always working on 20% tasks is the priority. Your main list of tasks will be constantly evolving, so take the time to give priority to make sure you know what tasks provide the most value. Resources to help you focus on your 20%tasks: 4. Think in the long term to make short -term decisions, better another priority method that Tracy recommends is to ask: "What are the potential consequences of doing or not doing this task?" Is it easy to think of having to complete everything in yours list. But reality is that some things simply should not be done. Other things are better delegated to others. If you question the consequences of making / do not do a to-do before starting on it, not only makes it easy to find frogs, but it also makes it easy to find time-to -per activities that are better deleted from your list or delegated to someone else. Resources to help you cut your business list: if you are fighting with this exercise, you may want to consider the decision -making process "do it, delegate it, defer" recommended in GTDâ®. Another approach is Zen to done's process habit in which the tasks are marked how to do, refer, delegate, delete or file. 5. Independently procrastinating "all procrastin," ovitagen ovitagen nu ah enoigar al am ,atturb asoc anu ataredisnoc etnematilos ¨Ã enoizanitsarcorp aL".us eranitsarcorp id onoglecs ehc olleuq ad atanimreted etrap narg ni ¨Ã issab irotucese ilg e itla irotucese ilg art aznereffid aL" .evircs It is that we usually procrastinate on our frogs. Our frogs are often great and difficult tasks, so they are easy to postpone. Low-value activities, on the other hand, can often be completed quickly, so they are easier to delete and mark from our lists. For example, one of my old boss once said he ignored people's emails asking questions that could easily get answers to themselves. It would only answer if those people sent a follow-up email. But most of the time, when he didn't answer, people would find the answer by themselves, eliminating one thing from his list of things to do. Results to help you procrastinate intentionally: 6. Use the ABCDE method that recommends the prioritization method that Tracy is the ABCDE method: "A" activities are things you have to do; It's your frogs. If you have more than one task you should not miss, you can give priority further by adding numbers: A-1, A-2, A-3, etc. "B" activities are things you should do. Responding to emails or attending meetings are often in case of activity. People can be angry if you don't, but these activities don't necessarily approach your goals, so they are a lower priority than "A" activities. The "C" activities are beautiful in dos. You probably want to do it, but there's no consequences if you don't. "D" are things you should delegate to someone else so you have more time for your "A" activities. eliminate. You don't need it or you want to do it, and there's no value in delegating them to someone else. It says you should evaluate your activity list frequently using this method. With time passing, priorities often change and you want to make sure your priority reflects such changes. Results to help you give priority to your business list: if the approach methodIt doesn't work for you, you may want to consider the creation of a matrix eisenhower instead. is another alternative that uses the "critical" categories, "high", medium "and" low "to classify the priorities of the tasks.7. Understand exactly what work you are responsible for is one of the most difficult places to focus on Frogs because there are a million ways to be drawn into other activities. There are e-mails and IMS to respond to, meetings to participate in, secondary projects to collect e-if jobs in an office-a lot of distractions in person. To avoid these things deraving you, you have to understand which tracy calls your "key result areas". What were you hired to do? What results should you offer? Understanding what you are really responsible, you can justify deleting and eliminating tasks that are not related to your tasks and specific goals for work. Results to help you distribute the job you don't have to do: 8. When it is time to work, work translation says that the best way to achieve work -Life Balance is to work the whole time you are at work. Every minute you spend Work on productivity killing activities such as chatting with colleagues in your favorite TV programs or scrolling through social media negatively affects your time away from work-or because you have to work overtime or because you are stressing out unfinished activities. Stay focused: 9. Get ready for your job before you start on Itpart to prepare for your job in advance is to plan your frog for the next day at the end of the previous work day and lock time to work on that frog so you can face it without interruption. But another part is make sure you have all the things you need to do your job and a comfortable work space to do it. Read how the work area affects your productivity: 10. Focus on a task at onceyou have planned your goals, you have also broken these goals into multiple tasks. This is an important part of achieving your goals because you feel a bigger and more overwhelming task, the amirp aut aL .srekcehc id atitrap anu arbmes oiradnelac out li ©Ãhcrep anamittes a golb lus tsop euqnic erevircs id ovitteibo out li eregnuiggar ioup noN .onretse erottaf nu Ãras adnamod atseuq a atsopsir al ,etlov A "?

can devote more time to your frogs. But Tracy says that the most of the time our constraints are internal. Let's procrastine due to the impress syndrome or fill our time with low value tasks and distractions. If Able to identify these constraints and eliminate them, we proceed to your objectives very much more quickly. Resources to help you remove the road blocks: 14. Find your motivation is easy to start and complete a task that your boss has assigned you with a deadline. It is difficult to start and complete a task only because you want to - even if you know the result of completing the task will be positive. Tracy says you have to find a way to motivate you to eat frogs by putting the same pressure on yourself that you feel when you are assigned a task and a deadline from your boss. Create your deadlines, try to beat the deadlines you have set and keep up on high expectations. Resources to help you get motivated: 15. Take advantage of your Tracy energy levels says that another way to be the most productive is "to look and feed the energy levels". Working too long, not being able to sleep enough, eating unhealthy foods and giving up the exercise are all the ways in which we exhaust our energy reserves, and consequently, our production suffers. We all have an internal clock, or chronotype, which affects our energy levels during the day. If you work with the chronotype, you are more productive. If you work against it, you are less productive. If you take time to find the chronotype, you can use it to your advantage to eat the frog at the point on the day when it is more likely to be excited and concentrated. Find out more about how the self-cura affects the production: 16. Another way to motivate you to eat frogs and meet your goals is to check your thoughts. Instead of sliding the negativity and diminish your plans, Tracy says that you have to "refuse to let the inevitable difficulties and the settings of everyday life affect your mood and your emotions." If yours It tends more towards the pessimist that optimism, can be rolled on this principle. In this case, it helps to think about
