The calm before the storm. Tomorrow a good chunk of the Windows Phone Central crew heads off to Las Vegas for CES. This past week also saw a relatively slow news period for the world of Windows Phone, Windows 8, and Xbox. Between Christmas ending and New Year's there wasn't much happening. Nonetheless, some new apps did come to the Windows Phone Store and some of your other favorite apps were updated. Missed out because you were too busy recovering from festivities? We got you covered. Let's check out the app highlights of the Windows Phone Store for the past week. 4Blend HDR –We love photography around here and do our very best to try out every photography app in the Windows Phone Store. For all you HDR fans out there you might want to check out a new app called 4Blend HDR. With it you'll be using your Windows Phone and Nokia's Imaging SDK to create high dynamic photographs. The app is pretty great and already picked up an update after launching. Pick it up in the Windows Phone Store. (Free) SpiceJet – Speaking of low-cost airlines. Indian airline SpiceJet has just released their official Windows Phone app. It's also exclusive to Windows Phone for the time being with no mobile apps available for iOS or Android users. You can book your flight and check your status all from within the app. Grab it in the Windows Phone Store. (Free) Updated Readit –Our favorite Reddit client for Windows Phone received a huge update this week. Readit was updated to version 1.4, which is most notable for addressing battery depleting and overheating issues with the CPU. Outside of those improvements you'll see the app receive a ton of refinements in terms of UI/UX and features. The new Glycat integration also allows for faster and smoother gifs. Grab it in the Windows Phone Store. (Trial/$1.99) UnfollowSpy –One of our favorite apps for managing who we follow on Twitter was updated this week. The recent update for UnfollowSpy for Windows Phone brings an overactive friends view, details for users profile and much more. There's also Instagram support coming soon. Grab it in the Windows Phone Store. (Free/In-app purchases) Fandango – Fandango for Windows Phone is back. The app disappeared months ago due to terrible reviews and a non-functioning app. The app now sits at version 1.6 and actually works. Check it out in the Windows Phone Store for all your movie booking news. (Free) Cal –The stock calendar application is decent on Windows Phone. However, third party developers fill the feature gap all the time. Cal is one of those apps that features both minimalist design and more advanced stats over the stock app. The latest update introduces new custom colors, a week view, a today button, a light theme and so much more. Get it in the Windows Phone Store. (Trial/$1.99) Super Calendar – Cal not jiving with you as an alternative to the stock calendar app? Super Calendar is another one of our favorite calendar apps and it too saw an update this week. The app was updated with two new day views, two month views, a refined week view and so much more. Grab it in the Windows Phone Store. (Trial/$2.49) 6tag – Rudy had a busy week updated all his apps with new features and starting work on a new project. His Instagram client, 6tag, received an update that allows for videos to be saved to a user's SkyDrive. Grab the update from the Windows Phone Store. (Free/In-app purchases) 6snap – We said Rudy had a busy week and we weren't kidding. The latest update for his Snapchat app, 6snap, brings the ability to draw on videos, multi-line text support on videos, and more. Big fonts were also introduced in an earlier update in the same week. Grab 6snap in the Windows Phone Store. (Free/In-app purchases) iHeartRadio – Still love terrestrial radio? Then you're probably a big fan of streaming service iHeartRadio. The app was updated to version 1.0 in the summer that introduced a new design. That update however left some users with streaming issues. A version 1.1 update hit Windows Phone devices this week that addresses those shortcomings. No changelog accompanied the update, but users are reporting that streaming is working again. Give iHeartRadio a go in the Windows Phone Store. (Free) Beta/Sneak peeks FilmOn – In the coming weeks FilmOn TV will have their Windows Phone 8 available for users. There's a public beta in the meantime that a lot of you are participating in. We are too, so we've given you all a sneak peek at the app for the popular streaming service. The app is most notable for allowing users to stream local affiliate channels and other networks like FOX, ABC, CBS on their Windows Phone. Check it out in action. Weather+ –Can you have too many weather apps in the Windows Phone Store? Maybe, but we're still going to highlight any beautiful and unique ones we come across. Weather+ is coming on the tenth of January, but we've got your first look at an interesting weather app. We're big fans of the clean interface and gestural navigation that the app uses. Check it out in action. Games Into the Dead – Still into Zombie games? Then you're going to want to check out Into the Dead. It's an intense zombie game from iOS and Android that's now available for Windows Phone. Warning, don't play this at night unless you want to get spooked. Grab it in the Windows Phone Store. ($0.99) Traffic Frenzy – Need to kill some time? Then you'll want to check this game out. Traffic Frenzy comes to us from Android and looks to be really fun. In the sense that it's a free game that will pass the time. What's gameplay like? Hint: You're a traffic light. Grab it in the Windows Phone Store. (Free) Light week in terms of new apps. But we'll be sure to have a busy week ahead with CES. Don't like our list? Sound off with your favorite apps and games from the past week. Another week has gone by, which means it's the perfect time to sit back and go over the big app news for the week. That's right, it's your favorite little column where we look at the big new apps that hit the Windows Phone Store. We'll also look at any apps that received substantial updates, cool new betas, and a few games. Let's jump in. New Mint – It took long enough, but it's finally here. Mint.com has released official apps for both Windows Phone 8 and Windows 8. It's been a roller coaster of a ride with Mint and Windows Phone. Earlier this year they said they had no plans for the platform. They then quickly announced a beta, had a few participate and released killer apps to the Store. Mint is one of the most popular finance aggregators out there. It helps you set budgets and keep your finances in check. It's only available for customers in the United States and Canada, so keep that in mind before downloading. Get it for Windows Phone 8 in the Windows Phone Store and grab it for Windows 8 from the Windows Store. (Free) Dragons Adventure Companion – Have kids and a Nokia Lumia 2520? Then you'll want the Dragons Adventure app for the Lumia 2520 and the new companion app for Windows Phone. The kids play the game on the tablet while you use the phone to set quests and interact with them. The app/game is free, but you're going to definitely want the Lumia 2520 and Dragons Adventure to make it worth your download. Get it in the Windows Phone Store. (Free) Track Runner – We've got a handful of activity trackers on Windows Phone, but Track Runner is one aimed directly at runners. It is featured packed with options and tricks that should make this an app to consider if you're into running. For example, Track Runner has the option to automatically mark off laps while you're running. Get it in the Windows Phone Store today. (Trial/$1.99) Paper Snow – It's nearly Christmas and a new app for Windows Phone lets you recreate one of our favorite holiday traditions- paper snowflakes. Paper Snow is an app that gives you the ability to create virtual snowflakes on Windows Phone. After making one, you can share it to various social networks like Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram. You can also save it locally to your device! It's a fun free app that you should check out. Get it in the Windows Phone Store. (Free) Today's Word – We're always trying to better ourselves. Today's Word is a free app for Windows Phone that will better your vocabulary one day at a time. You'll see the word of the day on the live tile with its definition or you can hop directly into the app to see what's your word of the day. You can share your word of the day with your various social networks and hopefully improve their knowledge. Grab it in the Windows Phone Store today. (Free) Updated MyFitnessPal – If you're into tracking your daily fitness activity and food intake you're probably already using MyFitnessPal. The recent update for Windows Phone brings new features like voice commands, push notifications, type-ahead searching, more languages, and complete support for different units of measurements. This is already one of our favorite apps and the latest update makes it even better. Get it in the Windows Phone Store today. (Free) Sozoom – You need this app for you Nokia Lumia 1520 and 1020. It's a fun little app that will help you show off the power of your PureView camera. Sozoom takes your high-resolution photos and allows you to show how much zoom you have at your disposal. The new update brings HD output for photos and more. Get it in the Windows Phone Store. (Trial/$0.99) MoliPlayer Pro – The latest update to MoliPlayer Pro makes it even more of a must-have app for your Windows Phone device. Update the app and you'll get new features like dual-audio MKV playback, WiFi transfer to a folder on an SD card, and much more. MoliPlayer Pro is the most advanced and feature packed video player for Windows Phone, so you should go download it from the Windows Phone Store now. (Trial/$2.99) 6snap – Rudy Huyn's Snapchat client keeps getting better and better. The latest update to 6snap brings filters, the ability to blur photos, fast-app resume, and so much more. You need to update it (or download it) right now from the Windows Phone Store. (Free/$1.29 to remove ads) Games Angry Gran Run – Better late than never.
