The First Day

Story By: Andrew Frinkle

Henry was so nervous. He hadn't even been able to sleep. Now, as the big yellow school bus rolled up to the school, he felt like a prisoner being dropped off at prison. There was a fence around school. There were people telling him what to do and when to do it. There were big, mean kids waiting to pound him. He couldn't leave when he wanted to, either.

Henry swallowed anxiously as the kids around him got out of their seats and began heading down the aisle to the open door. As he walked down the steps to exit, he wondered what his teacher would be like.

It would probably be a scary man this year. The guy would be like 300 pounds, like a football player. He'd have a shaved head and hairy arms, like a bear. He'd growl and flash his sharp teeth at anyone who didn't know their multiplication tables. It would be awful.

As he walked up the front steps into the school and the double doors ate him in one giant bite, he wondered what school lunch would be like this year. The macaroni and cheese would probably stick to the tray, even if he turned it upside down. The canned fruits and vegetables would be like mush. The pizza would be cardboard with red sauce and rubber cheese. It would be gross.

As he walked down the hall, he wondered about his classmates. How awful would they be? They would probably be wild, like gorillas battling for control of the jungle. Each one would be bigger, stronger, louder, and meaner than him. They'd smack him around and steal his cookies, because he was a weaker version of them. It would be horrible.

As he reached his classroom door, he wondered about homework. Surely he'd get a stack of papers like a phone book. His math book would be like one of those old dictionaries that takes two men just to lift it. It would be scary.

He stepped into the room. A pretty, young woman stepped over, shook his hand and smiled. "I'm Mrs. Stacey. Nice to meet you, Henry, right?"

Henry blinked in surprise. "How'd you know?"

"We've been expecting you." She replied warmly.

Henry glanced around the room. Bright, smiling faces all looked up from their neat desks, and they honestly seemed friendly. The room was decorated brightly and nicely, and no one looked like they wanted to pound him.

Maybe it wasn't going to be so bad after all, especially since they were serving chicken for lunch.

Letter of complaint

Read this letter, then answer in complete sentences the questions that follow.

5 Green Lane,
Greenford,
OH 44422,
April 11th

The Chairman,
Greenford Council

Dear Sir,

I am writing to complain about the state of the dump, formerly known as Greenford Park, which can be seen from the front of my house.

I use the word "dump" deliberately as this, in truth, is what it has become.

Are we, as local residents, expected to suffer the misuse and probable ruination of this once useful, attractive amenity without expressing our feelings?

For the last month, I have noted the following thoughtless actions that have contributed to its present condition:

- the casual dropping of litter in the form of cans, fast-food packaging, etc.,
- the deliberate dumping of an old mattress,
- damage to the few remaining trees and wild plants from vehicles either crossing the area or parking on it,
- the careless behavior of dog owners who allow their pets to foul the area without any attempt to clear up the mess that remains, thus endangering public health.

Added to these obvious forms of pollution, there is the noise from portable "music-making" devices in fine weather, which must contribute to the disappearance of the rabbits, badgers, and other species from this once beautifully unspoilt wild area.

In these days of conservation and "green" awareness, I should have thought that our council might leap at the chance to create an area that would promote the preservation of plants and wildlife.

Yours faithfully,
Mr I. M. Wild

What is the writer's reason for writing? In which paragraph does he first state his reason?
